INTRODUCTION

George, this report is designed to give you new insights into your character and personality from a perspective considerably different from that which most people use. The descriptions in this report are based on the ancient science of numerology.

The report discusses:

The lessons you are learning in this life, your deep inner desires and how to fulfill them, your talents and personality traits and how to make the best use of them, the environment in which you work best, your attitude toward work, and your ways of relating to other people.

The report can also guide you in identifying existing opportunities and opening the way to new and even more favorable possibilities. It's up to you, though, to use the information here, along with your free will, to determine the road on which you want to journey and the distance you wish to travel. No matter your age, the roads are open when you are ready to explore.

The numerology chart from which this report is derived is based on your birth date, birth name and current name. The birth date and birth name describe the characteristics and abilities with which you were born. The current name describes the changes in those characteristics and abilities that occurred after you started to use your new name. If you've used your current name for less than five years, the changes it describes may still be in the process of unfolding.

George, some talents and characteristics surface at different times in your life. Occasionally, a characteristic described in this report has been present in an earlier part of your life and is not of current importance. Sometimes, a talent mentioned here is present although you may not be fully aware of it. If this is the case, check with a friend who knows you well and you may be pleasantly surprised. A few characteristics may not have appeared in your life as yet although they're described in this report. The description of these undeveloped potentials may serve to open your consciousness to new and exciting possibilities.

For many people, some of their strong potentials are not developed because of obstacles that have not been overcome. A part of this report may describe you as you would like to be rather than as you feel you are. When this is the case, the sections of the report describing the obstacles holding back that particular potential are especially important for you to understand.

Quite often the report describes several different and diverse sides of yourself. You may try to suppress or even ignore parts of who you are that don't come easily to you and emphasize other, more comfortable sides of yourself. You'll find, though, that when you can learn to integrate and equally express all the different sides of who you are, you will make the most progress in your life.

OVERVIEW

You're primarily a strong, practical person. You probably work well at material, down-to-earth activities, very often in the business world—unless you're one of the few people with this kind of energy who have to first learn to break free of their dependence before they can operate comfortably in the material world. To a considerable extent, you are likely to be a rational and pragmatic individual with very strong needs. George, because you want to satisfy your strong ambitions and material desires, your early years are likely to be spent working to satisfy those needs and learning, too, to free yourself from the troublesome situations caused by your limited concern for others. Much of your youth and young adulthood will probably be spent learning to recognize other people's needs and learning, too, to modify your all too obvious rigid or stubborn streak.

Although there are other aspects to your character, these aspects are likely to exert considerably less influence than your strong practical energy. If there are any strong differences between your practical traits and the other aspects of your energy, the practical characteristics tend to be expressed.

George, your potential for spiritual awareness may be a lesser aspect, but it may still be of considerable interest to you—although many people with this energy aren't even aware of the special gift they possess. If you do choose to exercise this ability, you may be able to act as a channel for special spiritual understanding. Your spiritual side may be relatively weak when you're young but may assume more importance in your life from your early thirties on.

GEORGE: YOUR LEADERSHIP AND HARDWORKING BUSINESS ABILITY—AND HOW YOUR SELF-CENTERED WAYS LIMIT YOU

Your 1 Life Path, 4 Expression And 8 Soul Urge

George, you were born with strong leadership potential. As you develop this ability, you may be able to assume a significant position in the business or political world. One of your major lessons in life is to learn the benefits of being independent. You must first learn to stand comfortably on your own two feet without leaning on other people. After that, you can advance yourself by using your ability for organizing, leading and managing. Some people spend much of their lives on the first part of the lesson. Others learn that part quickly and devote most of their lives to important leadership roles.

You have a natural potential to work long, hard and patiently. If there's a job to be done requiring a good deal of time, much difficult work and careful attention to detail, you can probably do it well. Others will recognize this ability and turn to you for help with complex tasks on tight deadlines. With your orderly nature, you may choose a line of work in which your systematic approach can be developed. You would probably work well in any place where care with details is important. You're likely to be good at establishing new routines and maintaining existing ones.

You probably have strong material needs along with your executive and administrative abilities. You are likely to want a life of wealth, success and power. You would prefer running your own business or, at the least, playing a significant role in some commercial venture. Your desire for money and possessions is probably seen in your personal life as well as in your career.

Others usually see your energetic and determined approach. You also project an air of self-confidence and self-control. Inspired by these traits, people are willing to trust your judgment and follow as you initiate and control activities. You prefer to make the major decisions but you can take care of the details, too. You have the potential to be a powerful, even dominating, personality. You probably possess a charisma that stands you in good stead in your commercial ventures. A lot of your work is produced with an original flair.

You have a good mind and often develop creative solutions to problems, particularly problems involved with material matters. You know how to convert an abstract idea into a practical, down-to-earth working format. Your logical thinking and fine analytical ability are much appreciated. You also show the imagination necessary for commercial success. You are probably dependable, conscientious and disciplined almost all of the time. You're usually a good judge of character and probably have an innate ability to handle financial affairs. You are able to easily convince others that your course of action is the correct one for a particular situation. You know how to present your views in the best possible light in order to win acceptance. Your honesty and sincerity probably make it easy for people to place their trust in you.

Although you have a strong need for independence, you may have to work to break free of the dependence of your early years. You probably want to attain money, possessions, status and power. Although you probably prefer to keep your ambitions within reasonable limits, you may often find yourself straining after wealth and recognition. Frequently, material matters may outweigh other considerations and you have to exert considerable effort to keep your material needs in balance. If you show little interest in money or material matters, you may run into difficulties because of your indifference.

George, you have a fine ability to produce order where little or none has existed, but you may have to learn to use this important characteristic in a balanced way. If you have problems with organizational matters, you are not making good use of this fine potential. You probably have to be careful, on occasion, not to lose sight of the bigger picture because of your excessive concern with details. There may be times when you feel like you're in a rut, giving considerable effort without a sense of accomplishment. When this happens, see if you are causing the limitations that you experience rather than assuming that they are caused by someone or something else.

Frequently, you have strong needs to be satisfied and can't rest until you've taken care of them. More often than not, you act without consulting others because you're convinced that your approach is the correct or only way. Even when your approach is a good one, others may be irritated because you haven't taken them into account. As a matter of fact, there are times when you may have difficulty seeing other people's point of view. You prefer to do things your own way and may have to learn to consult others involved before you act. There may be times when you cause problems with your stubbornness, rigidity or one-track view. Your very strong likes and dislikes may also cause difficulties. You have to learn to distinguish between situations where you're helping yourself by standing firm with the courage of your convictions and situations where you're hurting your interests because of your fixed approach.

Your 19/1 Karmic Debt

George, you probably have considerable work to do to be able to see yourself and your needs realistically. If you're too immersed in your own concerns, you may run into problems because of your inability to recognize others' needs. You may have to learn to look past your own interests in order to become more aware of other people. If you're egotistical or aggressive, it will only add to the difficulties.

If, on the other hand, your needs are fulfilled primarily by submissively depending on others, you have to find the strength to break free from this dependence and learn to act on your own. You'll find little comfort in blaming your environment or other people for your inability to stand on your own two feet. If you're lazy or fearful, your problems in this area will require additional effort.

Many—possibly most—of the obstacles in your path are likely to be the result of your short-sighted appraisal of your needs. When you learn to observe your environment more clearly, you'll be able to use that environment to your advantage instead of being tripped up by it.

1 Modified Karmic Lesson

Although you're gifted with superior leadership potential, you probably have considerable work to do to learn to believe in yourself and your personal power. George, some people manage to hide their insecurity with a show of bravado, but most aren't very good at masking their vulnerability. In your early years, you probably feel little in the way of self-confidence. Despite your many capabilities, you probably have difficulty promoting yourself. You're likely to look to others for direction and are often pressured by other people's decisions because you're afraid to chart your own course. You'll have to accept the necessity of determining your own direction so that you can move forward without depending on others.

Your 1 Challenge

The pressures in your childhood and adolescence may keep you in a dependent position no matter how much effort you exert. When you move out into the world, you'll begin to learn how to take stock of a situation—including others' needs as well as your own—so that you can move forward with the courage of your convictions in the direction of your choice. It may take considerable time and work to break free to independence.

GEORGE: YOUR SPIRITUAL PATH TO MATERIAL ACHIEVEMENT—AND THE OBSTACLES

Your 22 Expression

Your potential for spiritual awareness is present along with your other traits. This special energy isn't available to most people. Many, though, who have this potential aren't ever fully aware of it or, in many cases, become familiar with it only when they're in their thirties or older. If you choose to develop your spiritual side, this energy may play an important role in your life.

When you use your spiritual awareness, you probably intuitively perceive a great deal about the non-material world—and religious, psychic or metaphysical forces. Other people will see your ability to apply your unique philosophical perceptions to the accomplishment of practical, down-to-earth undertakings. You may be able to develop or manage sizable ventures, particularly ventures with significant humanitarian ends. Using your non-material understandings for the benefit of the material world may bring you substantial recognition.

George, your spiritual gifts are only a part of your potential. If you develop and use your good mind, fine intuition and inner strength, you'll be able to direct others, often in new and exciting directions. With your fine intuitive sense, you can be most capable at whatever work you want to do. You're likely to command considerable attention with your special vision as long as you've learned how to communicate your motives and solutions—both probably unorthodox—so others can understand. People may sometimes see you as a charismatic leader, capable of winning followers with your unique combination of philosophical insight and practical understanding.

Although your spiritual abilities may bring power—and the money, status and recognition that often go with it—the power and its related satisfactions can only be achieved if you are sincerely working for the benefit of humanity instead of for personal profit alone. Many people gifted with these special abilities accomplish little because they are using their abilities to satisfy their own needs rather than the needs of the larger community. You may be in your thirties or forties before you realize this important lesson.

It's usually harder to use your unique high-level awareness than it first appears. There's a nervous tension accompanying your special ability that may interfere with making the most of your spiritual gifts. In your youth and adolescence, you probably have only a glimpse of your considerable potential and are extremely aware of the tension. As you get older, you have a far better chance of harnessing your talents and a better chance, too, of reducing the tension level. With maturity, the possibility of using your special potential is likely to increase markedly. You'll probably still have to learn to enjoy your current achievements—and they can be substantial—rather than postponing your satisfactions until you've achieved still higher goals. This may be a difficult lesson to learn.

Some people who are aware of their spiritual potential prefer not to use it. Others try using it for a while and then abandon their attempts. Most people, though, keep working to make the best possible use of this distinctive part of themselves.

Your 7 Intensity Point

George, the impact of your good mind and intuition may sometimes be reduced because you often approach matters from such a different viewpoint than other people. It's important that you express yourself clearly so that others can understand your pertinent ideas and not be put off by the out-of-the-ordinary way that you look at things. If you're having difficulty being understood and winning acceptance, don't worry that your ideas are beyond others. More than likely, it's your communication that's getting in the way.

GEORGE: YOUR LOVING, HELPING SIDE

Your 6 Birthday

The intuitive and spiritual aspect of your character is of importance in your life, but there's another aspect that makes itself felt, although it plays a far less vital role.

George, you know how to accept the responsibility of comforting, helping and serving others less able than yourself. You probably find considerable satisfaction from your efforts in this direction.

There's a sympathetic, appreciative, kind and generous side of you that occasionally displays itself. At these times, you show a good understanding of others' feelings. It's clear that you have deep feelings yourself and can express your emotions in a clear and direct manner when it suits your needs, although that isn't likely to be all that often. On occasion, you may get too emotional or express only part of your feelings in order to avoid expected criticism. You sometimes exhibit a good deal of flexibility, patience and consideration for the other person. You may even find that you can work well with the young, the old or the ill.

At least some of your activity revolves around your home and family. Your spouse and others in your close circle of relatives and friends enjoy your friendly, affectionate and loving side and probably give you love and affection in return.

When you care to, you're able to help settle arguments and keep things running smoothly. You're likely to be called on at times, both at home and at work, to help when the situation has gotten out of balance. There's an artistic side to you, too. You may make particular use of your imagination in your home and its surroundings.

Your 6 Intensity Point

You may have more work to do than you expect to take care of your own needs and, at the same time, take care of the many obligations that fall to you because of your heavy sense of responsibility. If you're the kind of person who is helping everyone take care of their needs while neglecting your own, you may have to learn to pay much more attention to your own desires.

ANOTHER POINT TO CONSIDER

There's another aspect of your character worth considering. This aspect is likely to require some effort to achieve resolution, but the resolution will probably prove well worth your efforts.

Your 5 Maturity Number

George, sometime in the middle of your life, probably between the ages of thirty-five and fifty, you're apt to begin thinking about how free you would like to feel. You probably haven't been too concerned with freedom—or lack of freedom—before, but current circumstances may bring it to your attention. There may be a significant change in one of the major stabilizing factors in your life—the end of a marriage or business, for instance, or the passing of a parent. There may be a new potential for freedom because of important financial gains or, perhaps, the abandonment of self-imposed responsibilities. Whatever the reason, it wouldn't be surprising if you start to change some of your attitudes and actions related to freedom because of this mid-life appraisal.

GEORGE: THE OPPORTUNITIES AND INFLUENCES THAT WILL AFFECT YOUR LIFE IN 2013

Your 6 Life Path Period And 7 Pinnacle

In addition to the many personality traits and characteristics just described, two long term cycles, the Life Path Period and the Pinnacle, set the background tone for a number of years of your life. They produce no abrupt or intense effect, but, rather, determine the general influences that you'll feel during the time they're active.

George, at this time in your life you're apt to have an interest in getting to know yourself better. In all likelihood, you want to spend more time alone than you usually do—studying, doing research or meditating—so that you can become more aware of your inner needs. A good deal of your efforts may also revolve around your home, family and close friends. In all likelihood, you'll find yourself giving much to others in a responsible and caring way, but be careful not to repress your own needs in the process. Don't let others take advantage of you because of your giving nature. Sometimes, your introspective needs are likely to take precedence but, at other times, your people-oriented needs may be more compelling. If you can find a way to balance these two opposing forces, you'll get the most out of this period.

Your 8 Personal Year

You may be occupied for several years with the general concerns described above. In addition to those interests, though, the Personal Year is a more specific influence that has a much stronger impact on your daily life. Though this influence is not directly related to your basic personality, it can show the time of greatest opportunity or when potential difficulties can arise. Having this information before hand can help you to get the most out of each year. Let's examine the specific areas of concern that are likely to attract your attention in 2013.

George, this year may hold a lot of exciting possibilities and be a time of action and accomplishment. If you've felt a good deal of power in the previous six or seven years, 2013 may give you more authority than you ever expected. If your influence has not been appreciably high for a while, expect a good deal more power in 2013. Much of that power is likely to manifest in your career, but you can use that same energy in personal matters with similar results. There's a good possibility that some of your ventures will come to fruition this year or will reach a point where some expansion will be necessary. This can be a time for advancement, achievement and recognition as well as a time for the improvement of your financial affairs. Use all your energy as positively and creatively as you can. Take action as dynamically as possible for the most significant impact and benefit.

If you can be efficient and practical, you'll improve your chances for fine results. Try to impress others with your resourcefulness and you'll help to maximize your potential. If you tend to be rigid or stubborn, though, or if you're impatient with your progress, you may irritate or alienate others. If you're straining after money, status or power, or if you tend at times, to misuse power, you'll limit your possibilities for growth. Take other people's needs into account or you're likely to lose potential allies. Although there's much to be gained this year, it can only be gained if you can keep a realistic view of the possibilities and a balanced view of the people who work with you.

SUMMARY

There's a great deal of power in the strong, vital and dynamic kind of person you are likely to be now or are in the process of becoming. Others usually recognize and appreciate your leadership, your hardworking nature and your considerable business talents. George, as you get older, there's a good chance that you find a comfortable balance between your own strong needs and the needs of others. Along with this balance, you may also learn how to combine the dynamism of the practical, materially-oriented side of your personality with the power of the intuitive, spiritually aware part of your character. As you learn, you are likely to find much satisfaction in your life. As you mature, you'll probably demonstrate your leadership or organizational ability and, if you choose, also develop your special spiritual gifts.
